Lawyers spar for I-580 project compromise

Attorneys for the Sierra Club and the Federal Highway Administration were reported at week's end to be "approaching a uompromise" on the widening of Interstate 580 through Dublin Canyon, but there is still the possibility that any attempt to reduce that project will be challenged in the courts by higher federal authority.

Assemblyman Floyd Mori revealed on Friday that "there has been a meeting in Sacramento which should produce a compromise by early next week." Mori indicated that the "the governor's office and attorneys for the Sierra Club" were involved in those talks.

Contacted by The Times, the legal firm representing the Sierra Club would admit to no such talks, but neither would Charles Chalmers of that San Francisco law firm deny that such a settlement was near. "As far as I know, there is no agreement," was Chalmer's only response.

Spokesmen for the California Transporation Department were equally reluctant to talk, but there was the tacit caution to "wait until next week" for any official word.

The Times has learned that current talks look to "completing just six of the eight lanes now, and leaving the addition of two more lanes open to further talks at some future time." This would appear to satisfy those who have insisted a six - lane freeway through Dublin Canyon was adequate, while also acknowledging the argument put forward by state and federal engineers who contend that the full eight lanes, plus a truck lane, will be needed.

"If we cut back to six lanes, then where that does leave the provision for bus and car pool lanes," was the response of one CalTrans authority. It was the Metopolitan Transportation Commission which first insisted that two of the eight lanes be set aside for public and private transport systems.

A critical factor in all these transactions is the call for bids for the first phase of that $100 million, ten - mile project through the canyon. At least five major contractors and something over 50 sub contractors throughout the Bay Area are spending "tens of thousands of dollars" in preparing to submit bids against the May 21 deadline. There has been no official word to stop that bidding procedure, even though the Sierra Club has submitted such a question to the courts.

"Even if the attorneys do agree on a compromise, there is the real chance that the people in Washington won't accept that deal, and will go to court themselves to test the Sierra Club's suit," one insider explained. The Federal Highway Commission is financing 93 percent of that big project.

Supporters of that expansion (including the City of Pleasanton but not VCSD or the Livermore city council) have contended that any major delay now in starting that project could result in a loss of all federal funding to allow any improvement whatsoever to the Dublin Canyon stretch of four - lane highway.

Drug buy reported by police

LIVERMORE - A Dublinite who allegedly accepted a "fix" of heroin as his sales commission was arrested in Livermore late Wednesday afternoon when the buyer turned out to be a police informer.

Vice and intelligence detective Dan Killeen says he was called at noon Wednesday by an informer who told him that Michael J. Butera, 25, 7575 Amador Valley Blvd., apt. 46, offered to make a connection with a Union City heroin dealer in exchange for a post sale fix.

Killeen made arrangements with the informant to follow the pair to the sale, and tailed him to the Dublin McDonald's hamburger parking lot where the alleged middle-man joined the informant for the trip to Union City.

The informant later told Killeen, who lost the car in traffic, that the two met a dealer named "Rodney" on an innocuous residential corner in Union City. Rodney rode with them for two blocks before stepping from the car and allegedly exchanging the two-gram balloon of heroin for $25.

Butera and his "buyer" returned to Butera's apartment where he reportedly picked up a kit before the two headed for the "snitch's" Livermore home.

According to the informant, who's identity police are keeping confidential, Butera took his commission in the 20 minutes before Killeen arrived.

Killeen, who has made two other "heavy" narcotics arrests in the past six weeks, seized an "outfit" containing a home made hypodermic needle, a bottle cap turned into a spoon, some cotton and two razor blades from the kitchen table, along with slightly less than two grams of heroin.

"Track" (needle) marks also were allegedly found on Butera's arm.

He was charged with sale and being under the influence of heroin and booked at Alameda County's Santa Rita jail.

Bail was set at $3,000 Friday morning following arraignment in municipal court. Butera is scheduled to enter a plea May 6.

The informant, according to Killeen, is not a heroin user.

It was a good time

Clear weather and colorful marchers drew thousands of residents and visitors to Pleasanton's Good Times parade Saturday morning. Among some 340 entries in the second annual "Let the Good Times Roll" parade, organized and produced by radio station KNBR and the Pleasanton Jaycees, was this miniature model of King Kong who delighted the little ones.

Mori backs solons in doctor dilemma

PLEASANTON — Assemblyman Floyd Mori of Pleasanton has sprung to the defense of legislators who are blamed for letting the doctors' malpractice premium problem mount to crisis proportions.

Mori says he hasn't been in the Assembly long (he was elected March 4 and was previously mayor of Pleasanton) but the malpractice problem became the first major issue he studied in Sacramento.

"What seemed to me in the beginning to be a simple problem of excessive lawyers' fees causing insurance premiums to go up, has, after study, caused me to realize that medical malpractice is a very complex problem involving many sectors of our society and our economy," Mori muses.

His thoughts are put down in a four - page letter sent to Frank Dill, a KNBR radio announcer who, like many commentators, criticized legislators for not passing reform laws to avert the current doctor walkout.

The state government has also come in for criticism from doctors, who point out other states have satisfactory legislation and lower insurance premiums. Insurance companies in California are saying they can't offer malpractice insurance at rates acceptable to physicians, because of the large amounts of judgements against them and because of the high cost of paying their own lawyers to defend a doctor who has been sued.

Mori commented in his letter to Dill: "The gist of your comments was basically that legislators are twiddling their thumbs and not addressing themselves to the crisis that is before us and that nothing is ever done until a crisis occurs.

"I do have to somewhat agree with this comment that it does take a crisis for the wheels to start turning and problems to get solved. However, the medical malpractice problem is a problem that legislators have been aware of and have addressed themselves to for quite some time now . . .

"Sometimes it is not easy to recognize subtle changes that occur in our society which culminate in the type of crisis we see today . . .

Patient care in our society is as mass produced as automobiles and all other goods and services seem to be produced bringing about a very impersonal relationship between doctor and patient. This, coupled together with the recent surge of human rights and consumers' rights has, in the last decade, caused claims against doctors to more than double . . . I don't think we can conclude that there are more incompetent doctors today — simply the nature has changed in some of our society values.

" . . . Secondly, another problem rests with the insurance companies' inability to predict the occurrence of malpractice claims. This is because of the long - tail effect that a malpractice problem today can be brought to the courts many, many years into the future . . . Last week, the Assembly passed AB 878 . . . The measure puts a statute of limitations on medical malpractice claims . . .

"Insurance companies earn much of their profits from their investments of funds. The downturn in the economy in the last two years has had a detrimental effect on the earnings of many insurance companies . . .

"There have not been the mechanisms to effectively police and eliminate the few in the medical profession who are incompetent, who continue to practice and who have an effect upon medical malpractice insurance premiums. There is proposed legislation that will give more strength and diversity to the State Board of Medical Examiners.

"The fourth problem is that of so many malpractice claims occurring and the expense of litigating and processing so many claims . . . There is proposed litigation to (1) have some kind of screening mechanism that would eliminate the clearly nuisance cases from medical malpractice claims and (2) a mechanism to arbitrate small claims rather than having them go through the court system.

" . . . Attorneys work on contingencies and large claimr into the hundreds of thousands of dollars net the attorney a large fee for his services. Legislation is proposed to set a sliding contingency fee scale which would lessen the incentive for attorneys to go for the extremely large claims in order to make a bundle of money . . . "

Mori offered to discuss the whole insurance crisis on the radio, and ended his letter to Dill with expressions of enthusiasm for the KNBR "Good Times" parade which took place Saturday in Pleasanton.

Whose to care for refugees?

SACRAMENTO — Assemblyman Floyd Mori has called on the federal government to accept complete responsibility for the settlement of Vietnamese refugees in California.

"The federal government owes the citizens of California and other states receiving Vietnamese immigrants a clear declaration that it will provide all necessary funds and programs necessary for their successful settlement," Mori said.

"It is important for the people of my district — especially the unemployed — to have confidence that welcoming these refugees will not cause further dislocation in jobs, housing or the availability of public services," he added.

In making the appeal, Mori joined Governor Edmund G. Brown, Jr. and other state leaders who are seeking assurances that federal funds and programs will care for the short-term and long-range needs of those airlifted into California from South Vietnam.

"Our ability to welcome these unfortunate people depends, in large part, on the willingness of our national leaders to insure that the immigration in no way hinders our efforts at the state level to meet the pressing needs of our citizens," Mori said.

* * *

On Thursday, Mori introduced a labor-related legislation package for unemployed workers.

This package would increase the maximum period of eligibility for unemployment benefits and the amount of those payments.

"Today's cost of living spells disaster for thousands of California's unemployed workers," he said. "If they are to be decently clothed, fed and housed, they must be given enough to exist on."

The person with children is hardest hit when he loses his job, Mori added, because no additional payments are provided for dependants.

One of his bills would provide relief for workers with families by offering $7 for one child, and an additional $5 for other dependants up to a total payment of $37.

A second bill would extend the duration on unemployment benefits from a current maximum of 26 weeks to a 39-week period.

"Jobs are scarce. It is understandably taking a longer period of time for the unemployed to find work," he said. "It is wrong to deprive the jobless of a subsistence income until they have adequate time to find work."

Wages of $18 or less paid to an unemployed person during any week are currently disregarded in determining the amount of the benefit to which an individual is entitled Mori's legislation would increase unemployment benefits by raising the rate to be discounted to $36.

Another proposal in the package would eliminate the confusion which surrounds occasional overpayments in unemployment benefits. "Unemployed people who have received overpayments are expected to return the extra money when the error is discovered. My bill would relieve the recipient of this duty," Mori explained. "Jobless workers are under extreme pressure to meet their financial responsibilities. I believe it is an unrealistic demand to expect them to return overpaid money which has already been spent."

Western Electric to shutdown plant

Western Electric plans to cease all manufacturing operations at its San Ramon plant by September 30 of this year, it was announced Friday.

Presently, some 550 people are employed at the plant and 500 of those will be laid off by the closing date.

H.E. Cradduck, the plant manager, said the company is closing the leased facility with "extreme regret" and added that the action is inevitable in light of substantial reduction in Bell System demand for the kind of telephone transmission equipment made at San Ramon.

At the same time, Western Electric announced that it has no plans to build on the Bishop Ranch property and that most of the land will be sold "in accordance with the company's original intention."

At the peak of employment over 650 people were employed at the San Ramon plant, but an overall layoff of 16,000 people in 1974 and 13,000 more company-wide so far this year forced the closing of the plant.

Manufacturing operations began at the plant in June of 1971, but lower demand for new service throughout the nationwide Bell System has forced the closing.

Big machines, firefighters quench valley training fire

DUBLIN — Seven massive pieces of fire fighting machinery representing eight fire departments and some 36 men from Danville to Manteca first fired then fought a blaze in Komandorski village last Thursday and Friday as part of the International "Twin - Valley Firefighting Academy."

"We had nine guys from Micronesia (in the South Pacific Truck Islands) up here last year, so I guess that makes us 'international,' " said Capt. Tom Robello of Valley Community Services District Fire Department.

"Boy, did they freeze. Especially when we took 'em up to the snow."

But that's another story.

Pleasanton Housing Authority donated the delapated, World War II housing for use in the academy's common training program.

Handling a "live" fire gives the departments' personnel a chance to learn more than ever could be communicated at in-class training sessions, according to Robello.

"The multi-deartment academy is the only way small departments can have a good, practical training program," he added.

The buildings provide excellent training fires, offering tight hallways, small rooms, outside staircases and multi-stories.

"We can duplcate each problem we'll have in a typical dwelling fire," Robello said.

The VCSD, Pleasanton, Livermore, San Ramon, Danville, Alameda County and Lawrence Livermore Laboratory departments were joined by day Tracy and Manteca for last week's two exercise.

The torch was set Thursday morning following a month's preparation by Robello during which he had to diagram the entire fire: which walls to fall first, which way they should fall; attacking the blaze in particular rooms and hallways with pre-assigned teams combining experienced firefighters with the inexperienced.

The academy is a volunteer venture run by participating departments, and offers college-credit training through Chabot College.

Heat blurs members of the firefighters academy as they watch the still burning remains of a Komandorski Village building.

New Pleasanton Maid is named

PLEASANTON — Lori Hickman's brown eyes glittered yesterday when she was selected as the new Maid of Pleasanton at the fairgrounds' amphitheatre.

A junior at Amador Valley High School, Miss Hickman is 16, 5 feet-6 inches tall and weighs 115 pounds. Her favorite hobby is working with plants and she eventually would like to work in underdeveloped countries in plant propogation.

Judged first runner-up was Rosalie Dwyer and second runner-up was Cathy Gadd. Chosen Miss Congeniality was Linda Wilson. Miss Hickman succeeds Theresa Lynn Alexander.

Buoyed by a large crowd, many of whom had come for the "Good Times" parade and stayed through the day to picnic, trek through the Foothill High School carnival and the arts and crafts show, the 10 Maid of Pleasanton finalists staged a song and dance production that gained many rounds of applause.

Entitled "Beautiful Girl," it was produced and directed by Marie and Fred Cochran, assisted by Denyse Christensen.

The new Maid will now represent the community at the Maid of Alameda County Pageant, also scheduled for the Fairgrounds Amphitheatre, on Sunday, June 29. The reigning Maid of Alameda County is Rhonda Sue Silveira of Fremont. All Maid contestants will fly south as part of the pre-Maid of Alameda County pageant festivities.

Saturday' show was organized and sponsored by the Pleasanton Chamber of Commerce and Mike Cleary of KNBR was master of ceremonies.

To link east and west

Pleasanton scans overpass plans

PLEASANTON - Many of the nearly 50 people who attended Thursday night's meeting on the Stoneridge overpass reported they were satisfied with the city's efforts to explain the whys and wherefores of that multi-million dollar project.

Their main concern appeared to be finding a way to finance the more centrally located West Las Positas interchange since no federal or state money is likely to become available in the near future.

The Val Vista Homeowners Association sponsored the public session and invited city officials to explain the financing mechanism for the Stoneridge overpass and to answer questions about that project.

The Stoneridge overpass over Interstate 680, which will be the first over - the - freeway link between east and west Pleasanton, is being financed by the developers of the Stoneridge Regional Shopping Center. The city will pay its share of that overpass through sales taxes generated by the center itself.

City Manager Bill Edgar explained the sales tax generated by the $100 million regional center will be far more than adequate ttmour the city for its share of the $2.5 million project.

At first, many of the citizens who attended the meeting were openly hostile because no public hearings on the environmental impact of the overcrossing had been held. By the end of the three and a half hour session, however, the residents were directing their questions to how they could insure the West Las Positas Boulevard interchange could be given a high priority.

If the citizens still desire a public hearing on the Stoneridge project, they can request it at the city council's May 12 meeting.

Edgar and a sizeable number of the city staff explained the background of the Stoneridge project and explained the only reason it is even possible — since no state or federal money is available — is because the shopping center developers are willing to finance it.

Their willingness stems from the fact they consider the overpass crucial to the success of the shopping center because it will make it more convenient for people east of Interstate 680 to get to the center.

George McMillion, president of the Val Vista Homeowners Association, said he thought the city "did a fantastic job of presenting the facts and answering questions. They're not going to be able to satisfy everyone," he added, "but I think they satisfied most of thd people."

Mike Hemp, who has been one of the city's most vocal critics in the past, also said city officials presented a "thorough and detailed explanation of the financing" for the overpass.

He added he believpd "heavy pressure" would be put on the city to mark surplus funds from the regional center and thp Redevelopment Agency for construction of an interchange at West Las Positas.

Air quality controls hinder sewer funding

Although public pressure has prompted the State Water Resources Control Board to cancel hearings on a controversial grant condition, that decision is not expected to make things easier for Pleasanton and the Valley Community Services District.

The state board had scheduled hearings for May 12 on a proposed grant condition that would have tied acceptance of grant money for sewer and water projects to a promise to comply with yet-to-be-determined air quality maintenance plans.

By order of the SWRCB's Executive Officer Bill Dendy, those hearings were cancelled this week.

However, that order states that individual grant applications will be reviewed individually and air quality conditions "may be imposed where necessary."

Since the Livermore-Amador Valley has been termed a "critical air basin," it can be accurately assumed that air quality condition might be considered "necessary" here.

The state has told Pleasanton and VCSD it will fund an expansion of the VCSD plant to 6.5 million gallons a day capacity and will impose that air quality condition on that grant.

Monday night, the city council indicated if that stringent requirement were added, they would refuse to accept the state and federal money. In Sacramento Thursday, members of the state board staff told city officials they were not surprised at the council's action, that they might consider doing the same thing in the city's position.

Rather than accept grant money for a plant the council feels would be too small to handle its commitments, and rather than commit the city to a promise to comply with air quality conditions that haven't even been written yet, the council took the first steps Monday night towards building its own plant.

They agreed to apply to the Regional Water Quality Control Board for discharge requirements for that proposed plant, which would most likely have to be financed by the city on its own.

The state board's decision to cancel its hearings came after staff members of the SWRCB, the Environmental Protection Agency and the Air Resources Board had discussed the proposed condition with several applicants.

That air quality condition might eventually be imposed across the board but it will not apply to all applications filed prior to June 30 of this year. Dendy's order indicated the state board felt the proposed grant condition was "inappropriate and creates an undue burden on local governmental agencies."

It also states, "Further development and public participation is required before final regulations can be adopted."

Council to decide on golf fee boost

LIVERMORE — Fees for playing a round of golf at the Springtown and Las Positas courses will remain the same if a recommendation by the Greens Committee is adopted by city council.

In discussing the 1975-76 fiscal year budget at its meeting last week, members of the greens committee unanimously voted against raising the fees 50 cents at the courses. The proposed hikes are included in budgetary requests prepared by city Public Works Director Dan Lee.

An 18-hole game of golf during the week at Springtown now costs $3.50. Nine holes are $2.50. On the weekends, 18 holes are $5 and nine holes, $3.

Games at Las Positas played during the week are $4 for 18 holes and $2.50 for nine. On the weekend, its costs $6 to play 18 holes (or nine holes before 3 p.m.). A nine-hole game over the weekend is $3.50 if played before 8 a.m. or after 3 p.m.

City council has the final word of whether the greens fee increase is initiated or not.

Trivia Teasers

The objective of trivia questions is for the participant to try and come up with the correct answer in as short a time as possible.

TRIVIA TEASERS is ideally suited for the group that wishes to pit their trivia skills. The object would be for each side to divide up the questions, ask them and write down the rnses withtin 30 seconds. The responses should be held until the following edition when the correct answers are printed.

To go to the library or plow through a stack of reference books in search of an answer to a trivia question is NOT trivia, it's an attempt at a structured history lesson.

Trivis, then, should be light and fun....a di-version.

With that in mind, here are this week's questions.

I. Phil Chenier, a star with the Washington Bullets of the National Basketball Association, attended what bay Area high school?

II. Name the last Milwaukee Brewer pitcher to be named to play in the All-Star game.

III. Name the university whose athletic teams are called the "Ragin Cajuns."

IV. First and last name of man who the late Harry Truman's daughter, Margaret, is married to.

V. Name of former All-American football player from west coast who has supporting role on TV's "Hawavi Five-O."

VI. Name of actor who has played Mark Twain on stage and who is now taking stage role of Harry Truman.

VII. The Oakland A's spring train in Mesa, Arizona. Name the park in Mesa where they play practice games.

VIII. Name the former Amador Valley High athlete who played part of last season with the Los Angeles Rams.

IX. A British actor who played "butler" roles to perfection, in recent years he has served as the announcer for the Merv Griffin TV show.

New bowl nearing approval

A 40 lane bowling alley on the northwest corner of Serra Lane and Dublin Boulevard is only a few routine permits away from groundbreaking, according to Dick Flynn, the Alameda County Zoning Administrator.

A conditional use permit for the bowling alley, snack bar and cocktail lounge was granted on March 26 to Ribco, Inc., a developmentcompany located on Metairie Court in San Ramon.

Robert I. Brown spoke for the company at the hearings in March.

Presently, the only bowling alleys in the valley are the Granada Bowl in Livermore with 16 lanes and the Danville Bowl in Danville with 24.

Brown was unavailable for comment on the anticipated opening date of the new bowling alley.

FIRST BANK REGISTERS LARGE GAINS

In spite of the current economic recession, the opening of another bank and a savings and loan office in Pleasanton within the last several months, The First National Bak of Pleasanton registered the largest first quarter deposit gain in over five years. As indicated on the accompanying statement of condition, total assets as of April 16, 1975 were $17,340,508.94 compared to $15,972,379.05 as of December 31, 1974, an increase of 8.5 percent.

Indicated first quarter earnings were also up substantially over the same period of a year ago. During this period Firstbank paid the highest permitted interest on savings deposits while charging notably lower interest rates on loans than do other banks.

First National Bank, which was established nearly 65 years ago, is the only locally owned bank in the Livermore-Amador Valley and as such is not owned by any bank holding company or foreign banking interests. The bank is a member of the Federal Reserve System and its deposits are insured up to $40,000.00 by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

SRV voters to decide fate of school construction plan

By JOHN KEARNS

Costs will be less if construction is approved in the San Ramon Valley school district this year, Superintendent Allan Petersdorf says.

"This project would have cost $1.2 million less last year," he said.

"We faced high inflation and it doesn't appear to be leveling off."

Petersdorf is supporting a May 27 election to approve more than $6.5 million in construction in the district.

The money would be used to construct a new intermediate school, add to California High School and remodel San Ramon High School.

The intermediate school will cost $3.1 million, San Ramon High School $2.1 million and California High School $1.2 million.

Petersdorf says the election needs to pass to house students already in the district.

Some intermediate school students, 7th and 8th graders, are attending classes at Californi High School and other schools are overcrowded, he says.

Voters will be asked in the May election to approve a maximum tax rate increase of 39 cents per $100 of assessed valuation.

This means that, if the election passes, the district could raise taxes by a maximum of 39 cents.

Assessed valuation is one quarter of a home's market value. A $60,000 house would be valued at $15,000 for tax purposes.

The 39-cent maximum tax would be charged on each $100 that makes up the tax value of the house. For a home with a market value of $60,000, the 39-cent tax would increase the owner's school taxes by a maximum of $58.50 per year.

Taxes on a $40,000 home would rise to a maximum of $39.00 and taxes on a $80,000 home wouid go to a maximum of $78.00 per year.

Petersdorf says the school district will probably never levy the full tax rate increase.

He thinks a maximum of 32 cents will be asked in any one year and that that amount will decline over time.

If voters approve the maximum tax rate increase a non - profit corporation would be formed to sell construction bonds.

The school district would begin buying the bonds back from the non - profit corporation when the construction work is done.

If the election fails, Petersdorf thinks construction costs will be even higher next year.

The district is expecting construction costs to continue to rise 1.5 per cent per month.

The total project is expected to cost $7.9 million by March 1976, assuming inflation continues.

If the election passes the total cost to the district is expected to be $19.3 million over a 23 year period.

That figure includes all construction costs and interest on the bonds.

A simple majority vote will pass the May election. Last year two general obligation bond elections failed in the district.

General obligation bond elections require a two - thirds majority to pass buy May's election asks voters to approve a lease - purchase financing method which requires only the simple majority.

Proclamations

PLEASANTON — The city council has proclaimed May as "Anti-Litter Month" and as "American Business Women's Association Scholarship Month."

The first proclamation was made on behalf of the California Anti-Litter League and the second on behalf of the ABWA which, last year, awarded more than $740,000 in scholarships to women through its national scholarship fund and the ABWA chapters' local scholarship programs.

Arrow Rentals looks at new site as Pleasanton awaits relocation

PLEASANTON — The latest move by Arrow Rentals in search of a permanent home in this city will apparently send that business to the far end of Santa Rita Road. If successful, that relocation would come just in time to prevent the city council from applying new pressure to get the rental firm off of Main Street

"They have had ample opportunity . . . we have been more than fair," says Vice Mayor William Herlihy in his own assessment of the situation. Council had earlier permitted Arrow Rentals to occupy a "temporary location" in the 400 block of Main Street.

The firm had been counting on relocating to a permanent home on Stanley Boulevard, but that possibility has apparently fallen through. The Santa Rita Road site would be just below Interstate 580, and outside the city limits. Necessary zoning is being sought from the Alameda County Planning Commission.

Nuclear power popular overseas

Although nuclear power plants have been stalled in the United States recently due to environmental considerations, construction worldwide is moving ahead at a rapid pace.

James Birle, an executive with General Electric's Nuclear Energy Division, predicted that half the world's power will be supplied by nuclear plants by the year 2000.

Amador High officials tighten discipline, senior class rules

PLEASANTON — An Amador Valley High School administrative staff decision to suspend the annual senior picnic for this year's class has brought a strongly positive response from parents.

In a letter sent out April 25 to parents of the almost 400 senior class members, Principal Ralph Laird and his aides, as well as senior class advisors, declared that "some unfortunate incidents have occurred during the senior class activities this year, which have caused embarrassment to the whole class, considerable concern to the class advisors, and have cast reflections upon the whole school. The present senior class has been embarrassed by a large minority who have, by their actions, precipitated some strong feelings throughout the school and community."

The apparent "final straw" came two weeks ago, on the day of the Senior Banquet, a number of seniors, estimated at possibly more than 50, cut afternoon classes to attend a party on a ranch south of town. The administration says that "a much larger number" joined this, and other parties, after school hours. When it was time to leave for the banquet (at Goodman's in Oakland's Jack London Square), some students were not permitted to attend because they had, in the administration's judgment, "been drinking."

Reports from those attending indicated several were refused permission to take the bus with their classmates and followed in their own cars.

The letter also claims "students behaved at the banquet in such a distasteful manner as to cause extreme embarrassment to the chaperones, to the employes of the restaurant, and to those students who did not condone such action." A few students allegedly were abusive of the waitresses.

The initial incident occurred last October when the senior class purportedly violated the Homecoming Week rules by constructing its float at an unapproved site and without previously agreed upon supervision. "In this setting," the administration letter contends, "the students combined decorating with drinking parties. As a result of this action the senior class was directed to complete their float at another site and was placed on probation for the remainder of the year."

As a result, Laird, assistant principals Roger Dabney, Tom Himmelberg and June Winter and the four class advisors, have decided that the Senior Ball May 10 will be held on the condition that, in addition to faculty supervision, adequate parental supervision can be provided by the parents of seniors.

Also, the rules which will be enforced at the Senior Ball will be printed and made available to all participating seniors beforehand and the senior picnic, scheduled for Little Hills Park, is cancelled.

Laird said that after carefully considering several possible alternatives, the administration had concluded that the "responsibility and punishment must be shared by the class as a whole since (the matters in question) the events were class activities."

Laird adds that there have been scattered acts of defiance, aimed at the administration, since the letter went out. However, he says the great majority of responses by student and parent alike have indicated agreement with the letter and its decisions.

Murray board to study reports

Information will be the keynote of Monday night's Murray Elementary School District Board of Trustees meeting at Lydiksen School.

Four informational reports will highlight the 8 p.m. meeting and perhaps the most interesting will be the discussion of the "town hall" form of student government at Lydiksen School.

Lydiksen abandoned the traditional posters on the wall and popularity contest student government for a more radical town meeting style of government.

The trustees will also hear a report on the reading project at Wells Intermediate School and on the trip to Mexico that 16 students took over Easter Week.

The final report will be on the Association of Low Wealth School Districts, of which MESD and the Livermore Unified School District are both members.

The association was formed to give school districts with money problems some kind of forum to speak from, and the association has hired a fulltime lobbyist in Sacramento to push financial aid to school districts like Murray that have been hurt by Senate Bill 90.

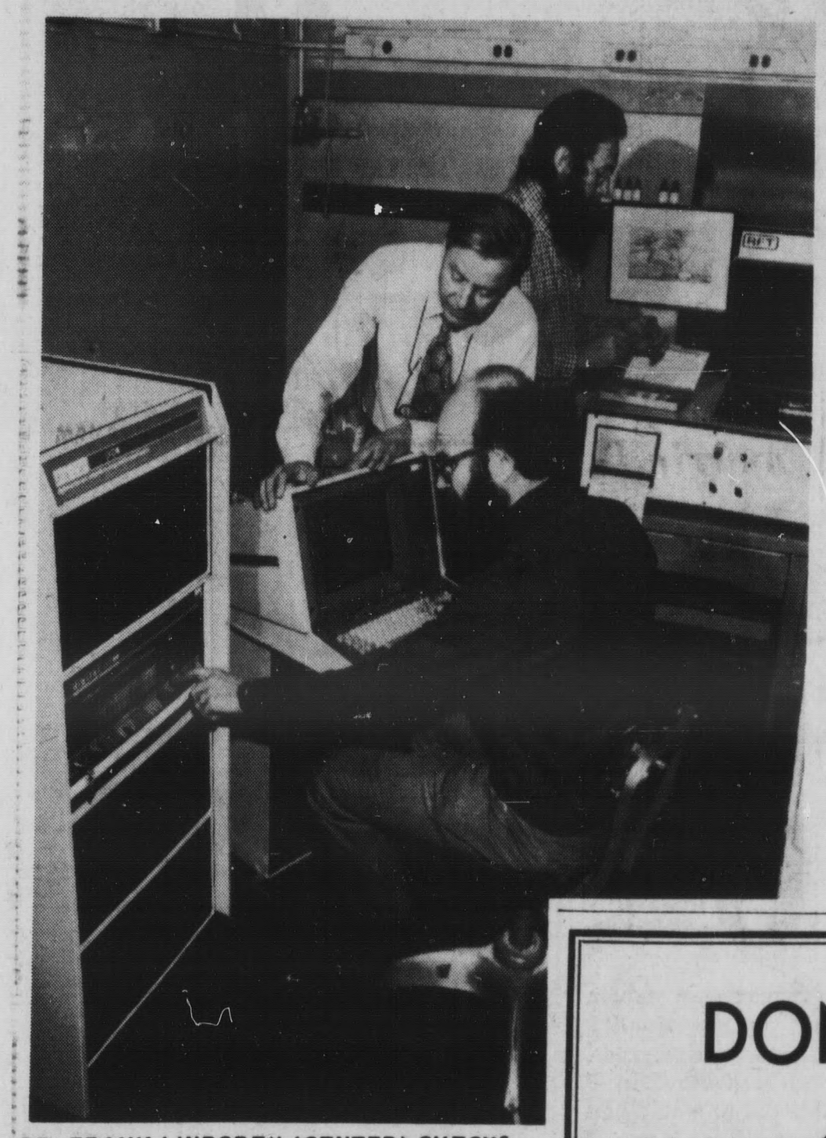
Selection of a representative to the Congress of Valley Agencies and a pool use agreement with the Highland Oaks' HomeOwners' Association are also on tap.

No presentation is scheduled from the Certificated Employes' Council(CEC), which represents the teachers in the ongoing negotiations with the district for next year's contract.

No meet and confer sessions(as the bargaining sessions are named in the law) have taken place since the last board meeting due to the Open Houses that most schools held over the past week. The Open Houses occupied the teachers and the administrators and prdvented a meeting until May 7.

Few agreements have been reached on the 63 page package that the CEC presented to the board and the teachers have set a deadline of May 20 to complete negotiations.

If agreement is not reached on six major issues by that date, a mass meeting will be held and the possible results of that meeting range from an immediate strike to acceptance of the last board counterproposal.



DR. FRANK LINDGREN (CENTER) CHECKS OUT HIS ELECTROPHORESIS SETUP
The computerized system could eventually reduce deaths from strokes and heart attacks.

New blood tests may save lives

The Lawrence Berkeley Laboratory has announced the development of a new method of analysing the blood of large segments of the population that could cut drastically cut the death rate from heart attacks and strokes.

According to Dr. Frank Lindgren of LBL, if blood plasmas were routinely examined for the amount and type of fats and lipoproteins, both preventative and emergency medical care would be much more effective.

Traditionally, cholesterol has been identified as the villain in heart trouble but actually that chemical is only one of many plasma fats, or lipids, involved

Each lipoprotein (the lipid is bound to a protein) has different characteristics and responds only to certain diets and treatments. Thus, treating a patient for general lipoprotein problems is very difficult unless it is known exactly which chemical is involved.

Previously, that was not only very expensive but very timeconsuming but Lindgren has developed a computer-aided electrophoresis process that identifies which lipoprotein is present by its ability to move across an electrically charged area.

With Lindgren's process, 30 samples can be analysed in 20 minutes, and the first clinical applications are already in progress at Oakland's Merritt Hospital.

Scientists peg solar energy as top source

Of all the potential power sources that scientists have claimed could solve the energy problems of the world, the most popular with environmentalists is solar energy.

Solar energy is simply that — energy from the sun that is converted into electricity to power cities. Of course, the first major problem arises when the sun doesn't shine for weeks at a time, and the second big problem has been collecting and storing the energy.

Alan Skinrood, the supervisor of the Plowshare and Transducer Technology Division at Sandia Laboratory in Livermore, has been heading a team working on the answers to some of the problems with solar power since 1972. If the difficulties can be overcome, solar power can supply plentiful, environmentally clean power that can certainly reduce the dependence of the United States on fossil fuel or nuclear power plants.

To counter the problem of long winter storms or lack of sunshine, Skinrood has designed his high temperature solar energy system to work around a conventional fossil fuel plant. Ideally, the solar component of the power plant would be working most of the time with the fossil fuel sector taking over only in emergencies or late at night.

Also, Skinrood has postulated that his prototype plant be located in New Mexico, Southern California or Arizona to gain maximum advantage from sunny days.

Of course, a solar power plant could be located anywhere but the cost may not outweigh the energy absorbed in a particularly cloudy area like the state of Washington.

Skinrood's plant is not economically viable now, but he estimates that when the cost of energy reaches approximately $2 per million British Thermal Units for the utility companies (a price that is rapidly being approached), a solar energy plant would be feasible.

One of the problems with solar energy is that it is diffused over large areas and must be somehow collected. Skinrood's model calls for aluminized plastic or plated glass mirrors to catch the light and reflect it into large "cavities" as they're called, on the tops of very high towers.

The higher the tower, the more mirrors that can be focused in the cavity, so Skinrood's preliminary plans call for towers over 750 feet tall. With all the light pouring in, it is estimated that the temperature of the beam will reach 1000° Farenheit.

The cavity will have a hole in the bottom to catch the beam but will be closed on all other sides. The outside wall of the cavity will be opaque but between the outside wall and a transparent inside wall will be a fluid with a high melting temperature. The fluid will absorb the heat, carry it down pipes underground where the heat will be transferred to water. The water will boil, turn to steam and drive turbines to produce electricity. When the solar collectors had used up their six hours of stored power, the fossil fuel component could be turned on if necessary.

"The whole game is to engineer something you can afford" said Skinrood and the beuatiful postive aspect of solar power is that all the technology is available now. Nothing has to be developed to make it work.

The collectors will have enough heat for 1500 megawatt hours of power (in a 250 megawatt plant) after the sun goes down and since peak power demand is in the early evening — along with the peak sunlight — the use of fossil fuels could be quite limited in sunny weather.

"You cannot store enough energy reasonably to do without a fossil fuel backup" concedes Skinrood but any new development in batteries could radically alter that statement. Batteries have remained almost unchanged since their first invention in the mid-1800's, and they are still the best way to store energy.

Sandia has a $75,000 grant to investigate better ways of storing solar energy — whether it be in water, rocks or batteries, — but the best idea so far is merely an extension of the thermos bottle idea that will be employed in Albuquerque, New Mexico, to help power that city.

That "thermos bottle" will be 12 feet high and store 2,000 gallons of water or oil, and through heat exchangers will be able to convert water heated by the sun from 130° to 140° to temperatures in excess of 400° Farenheit.

Although that is not the final answer, it is another small step on an apparently long road to convert the most abundant and most environmentally sound source of energy into a reliable and important part of our power resources.

Summer school signups set

PLEASANTON — Students in grades 1 to 8 who plan to attend summer school must fill out and return a registration form to their respective school offices by Monday, May 12.

The registration form is printed on the back of brochures being sent out to parents of Pleasanton Elementary School District children. David L. Cook, a vice principal at Pleasanton Elementary, will be summer school principal.

Summer school will begin on Monday, June 23 and end on Friday, July 25. First, second and third grades will attend summer school at Alisal School with classes commencing at 8:45 a.m. and ending at 12:45 p.m. Bus transportation will be furnished to those students who are not within walking distance to Alisal.

Students in grades 4 to 8 will attend summer school in one of two schools depending upon the area in which they live in Pleasanton.

Students who live in Castlewood, Sycamore, Happy Valley, Mission Park, the central city area, Vintage Hills, Jensen Tract, Amador Estates and Rose Pointe will attend Pleasanton Elementary.

Students living in Komandorski Village, Pleasanton Meadows, Del Prado and Pleasanton Valley will attend summer school at Harvest Park School. Classes will begin at Pleasanton Elementary and Harvest Park at 8:15 a.m. and close at 12:15 p.m. Bus transportation will be furnished to those students who are not within walking distance to the school which they will attend.

All students who will be entering first through eighth grades next fall and living within the boundaries of the Pleasanton district are eligible for enrollment. Graduating eighth graders are eligible to attend for credit the Amador Joint High School District's summer school.

Cook notes that attendance is a big factor in summer school. "The amount of money allowed for daily pupil attendance from the state constitutes the major source of financial support. Without this support a summer school program would be very costly to the local community." Adds Cook, "Students may register for summer school even if they are planning to be gone for a portion of summer school, but be sure to notify the summer school office at 846-2845 and indicate dates of absence on the registration form."

Students involved in private instruction (swimming, tennis, tutoring, music, etc.) may still participate in summer school. Please indicate lesson time on the student's application.

Students will be notified by mail of class, schedule and room the week of June 9.

Any further questions on procedure should be directed to Cook at Pleasanton Elementary, 846-2845.

The elementary district will offer a reading and communciations institute. The institute's aims are to assist children of all grade levels in the two basic communication areas of language and mathematics. The program this summer will offer reading communication classes for children entering second and third grades next fall.

Limited in size, the classes will stress prevention of reading problems. Children will be chosen from teacher-parent referrals and screened by the instructors. They will be selected on the basis of their need to have an organized sequential reinforcement of reading-language skills and related motor-perceptual abilities and on their potential to profit from such a program within the summer session time span.

These classes will have the same time schedule as the regular summer school. Parents of children who might gain from this program will be sent a separate announcement and application form.

Also to be offered are an extended E.H. program for students who are presently involved in the program during the school year. This diagnostic learning center will be for those in grades 1-8. Type of classroom activities will be dependent on each individual diagnosis and there will be a balance among the academic, motor coordination and recreational activities.

District E.H. teachers will notify parents concerning their child's possible participation in this program.

Also scheduled are fourth and fifth grade special classes including reading, math and writing workshops. The workshops will be structured, according to Cook, to stress correction of reading, math and writing problems. One class in each subject area will beoffered to a limited number of students. Cook recommends that a student take no more than one or two of the workshops so that he or she can enjoy the selection of enrichment electives.

New Val Vista homes groomed for public eye

Val Vista, a Singer Housing Company single-family, detached home community, in Pleasanton, is presenting a new section preview showing of three and four bedroom residences on individual lots, according to Anthony A. Allen, president.

"A few homes are ready for early occupancy pending loan approval," Allen noted. "Now is the ideal time to select from the best sites, plans and choice of elevations while they're still available."

The community, located on Hopyard Road off Highway 580 in Pleasanton, features a 7 3/4% conventional financing plan. Prices begin at $41,950.

Amenities among the five Val Vista models include sunken living and/or family rooms, tiled central entry ways, wall-to-wall carpeting, dressing areas and private baths in master bedroom suites, beamed ceilings in living and family rooms, custom finished fireplaces (some plans), decorator light fixtures, and sliding glass patio doors.

"These family-sized residences,set against the Sunol Ridgein the Amador Valley,provide the perfect location," said Allen. "You're within Pleasanton's city limits to enjoy its benefits, protection, and conveniences; surrounded by recreational opportunities; and free to select shopping centers in Dublin, Livermore, Walnut Creek, Pleasanton, or a short drive to Oakland or San Francisco."

All electric Hotpoint kitchens are equipped with surface range and oven (double ovens in some plans), disposal, choice of tile counters, luminous ceiling lighting, and breakfast nooks. Baths feature cultured marble vanity tops.

Back line fencing, underground utilities and TV cable installation, two-car garages with storage areas, and 220 wiring to separate laundry rooms and laundry areas are included in all Val Vista models. In addition, homes have fully insulated exterior walls and ceilings, shake roofs, forced air heating, and guaranteed water heaters.

"A luxurious sunken living room and interior zoning technique that separates the bedroom wing from the entertainment centers are featured in the Monte Vista plan. Its fourth bedroom can be converted into a masculine den, sewing room, hobby room, or home office," Allen explained. "The kitchen, reflecting the feminine touch in its space-saving layout and built-in conveniences, is the product of many consultations with homemakers."

Homebuyer options in the development include Hotpoint dishwashers, air conditioning and fireplaces in some plans.

"Val Vista homes are specifically crafted for elegance and everyday comfort - the dual elements of fine California living," Allen added. "They're close to town, but not stifled by traffic noises, truly a great place to live."

For more information call Sales Manager Ross Zuest, 846-7175, or visit the models on Hopyard Road.

Three Valley soccer teams advance to Seattle

Three local youth soccer teams yesterday emerged from the Western Regional qualifying round headed for Seattle and the regional championships.

The Livermore under-19 side shut out Club America of San Francisco, 4-0, enjoying a 20-5 shots-on-goal advantage over their opponents.

Pleasanton's Ballistic United under-14 team showed a balanced attack and registered another shutout, 5-0, over the Yosemite Braves of Fresno.

And Ballistic's under-12's scored a shutout of sorts when Wolter's Cherokees called from Fresno Friday night to forfeit Saturday's scheduled replay of the State Cup final.

The Neutrons gained a measure of revenge in yesterday's Stockton competition, as they had been defeated by Club America, 2-1, in State Cup play two weeks earlier.

The scoring started early, as Mike Romero was tripped 23 yards from the goal in the opening minute, and Ted Wood connected on the direct free kick.

The Neutrons outshot the San Franciscans, 14-1, in the first 45-minute half, helped out by a strong wind advantage. Club America crossed midfield only two or three times in the opening minute.

In the fifth minute of the second half, Wood took a pass from Tim Wade and scored from 13 yards out.

Halfway through the period, Dan Payne passed to Dave Anderson, who tapped in a two-yarder for 3-0.

With five minutes left, the same tandem produced a seven-yard score.

Neutron coach John Young praised the defensive work of fullbacks Jim Watson and Dan Pegan, and halfbacks Wood and Mark Bryant.

Ballistic u-14 coach characterized his team's contest as "well played" by both sides, emphasizing an excellent defensive job by Ballistic center fullback Russell Baine.

"Baine covered their hard-kicking center forward man-to-man, and didn't allow him one shot," enthused Clifton. "The Fresno team played kick-and-run, with the center forward leading the play. But Russell shut him off." Ballistic played with 13 of its normal 16 members, as Clifton noted baseball's depleting effect on tournament soccer.

"Chris Henry, who usually plays wing for us, moved to fullback and did a great job," Clifton added.

Henry set up two Ballistic scores, including the initial tally in the third minute, when he passed to Dennis Miller, who made it 1-0.

Kirk Ackerman scored unassisted in the 10th minute, and Henry teamed up with Mark Fish 10 minutes later for 3-0.

Scott Weiss added icing in the second half with an unassisted goal, and Fish hit another in the 45th minute, assisted by Kevin Crow.

Sports in brief

Cheryl's triple dumps JC's

Cheryl Eldred's triple drove in the winning run last week as Cooper-McKenzie defeated the Jaycees, 16-15 in Pleasanton Bobby Sox softball.

Sandy Gilpatrick and Marian Hagler homered for the winners. Lynn Millard and Lori Gilliam of the Jaycees also homered.

Cooper trailed after two innings by a score of 15-3.

Cooper-McKenzie bopped the Blue Jeans, 14-8, paced by Karen Elkins' home run. Debbie Stromer cracked a double.

The Blue Jeans' Carrie McNatt recorded an unassisted double play, and Kathy Malone made two fine outfield catches.

Debbie Stromer, Eheryl Eldred, Lisa Kecskes and Julie Fernandez made fine catches for the winners.

Kissin coasts to SJ mile victory

"I was pretty pleased with the time, but I felt I could have run faster," said Roy Kissin after winning a soggy high school mile run at the San Jose Invitational yesterday.

The San Ramon senior was clocked in 4:19.7 for the rainy, windy competition, as he ran 2:07.8 for his second half mile.

"There were two inches of water on the track, so it was sloppy all the way around," he pointed out.

Kissin was joined in the early going by Tom Schrenk of Menlo High. But, added Roy, "I had the race under control."

The absence of Skyline's Jeff Johnson was another factor which removed some of his competitive edge, Kissin noted. "The competition and the weather just weren't the best. I've been feeling really zippy lately, but what the hell . . ."

In other developments, Steve Williams streaked 9.2 to take the open 100-yard dash, while Keith Taylor of Piedmont Hills ripped a 9.4 to take the high school 100 from Castlemont's Maurice Glass.

NCS commissioners approve grid playoffs

Football playoffs in four classifications will be held among North Coast Section schools at the end of the 1975 season, it was announced yesterday.

In a reconsideration of a motion passed four months ago, NCS commissioners approved the plan by a two-thirds vote. The motion had originally passed 12-11, with the president casting the deciding vote.

In the playoff scheme, three of the classifications have yet to be arranged, the 4A, 3A and 2A groups. However, the 1A (small schools) category will consist of two North Central leagues, the Northwestern League, and the Humboldt-Del Norte "Little Four."

The classification of the remaining schools was referred to the Section Playoffs Committee, which originally recommended football playoffs three years ago. The group could report its breakdown as early as mid-June, but more likely the decision will be made public sometime between then and mid-September.

The commissioners then turned their attention to basketball, where the playoff picture is clouded by a proposal to convert the Tournament of Champions to a NorCal championship tourney.

"The commissioners concerned themselves with three main areas — representation, management, and distribution of revenue," said commissioner Paul Gaddini.

The North Coast section would participate in Northern California basketball championships, given three conditions — (1) equitable representation with regard to number of schools and entries; (2) that the tournament's management committee would be representative of the number of schools per section; and (3) any distribution of revenue from such a championship would again reflect the ratio of schools per section.

"If these conditions are not met," Gaddini said, "we will definitely not participate."

Gaddini pointed out that the current Northern California Tournament of Champions proposal does not comply with the NCS standards, but was quick to add that the proposal was "not etched in stone."

The current draft of the tourney prospectus calls for one team to represent each section, one management position for each section, and a like distribution of revenue.

Six Mats make NCS swim

RICHMOND - With Chris Hoenig leading the way, six Granada and one from Amador Valley High swimmers became the only EBAL competitors to advance to the North Coast Section varsity championships via yesterday's Division I meet at the John F. Kennedy swim center here.

Hoenig set a new meet record in the 500 freestyle with a 4:59.5 clocking. The Matador junior was the only swimmer in the event who had ever broken five minutes.

In addition to the newstandard, Hoenig grabbed first in the 200 IM with a 2:03.5 time and swam the anchor leg of Granada's second place finish in the 400 free relay.

Two other Mats qualified in more than one event.

John Rizzo finished third in the 50 free at 23.3 and swam on the 400 free quartet.

Steve Cutting, who opened the 400 free relay for Granada, finished sixth in the 200 free with 1:56.1 timing.

The other four Mats will compete in just one event each when the North Coast meet is contested next week in Santa Rosa.

Dave Eckart finished third in the 100 breast with a 1:05.3 while the Johanson brothers were advancing in different events.

Dave tied for third in the 100 back (1:01.6) while Ron completed the 400 free relay squad that covered the distance in 3:37.8.

The Dons' Jeff Gaeckle became the only EBAL rival to crack the Mats' monopoly on varsity entries from the Valley when he tied for sixth in the 100 fly with a 58.1 clocking.

In frosh-soph action, it was Dublin which shone the brightest of the seven EBAL schools represented.

The Gaels opened the meet by fashioning a new 200 medley relay record, as the team of Stew Burke, Victor Hinojosa, Eric Steinhauff and Mark Steinhauff completed the route in 1:49.3

Two of the Gael quartet also came out individual winners.

Hinojosa won the 50 fly in 26.1 — just a tenth of a second off the meet record — and finished second in the 100 breast at 1:07.3.

Mark Steinhauff compiled a similar combination as he outdistanced the field in the 100 free (52.1, good for a new record) and was runner-up in the 200 free with ae91:53.6

Again it was an Amador swimmer who kept one team from gaining all the EBAL laurels.

Brian Story sprinted to a 24.4 win in the 50 free and swam the second leg on the Dons' runner-up 400 free relay team (which had a 3:34.2). Diving results had not been released by meet director Steve Spinola as the Times reached deadline.

Gibson too much for 'Pokes

San Ramon High's deep, deep pitching staff is a worthless commodity in the EBAL. A brief 10-game schedule, pocked with off-days for every team, is forcing throwers to rust on the scrap heap, coach Rick Steen lamented Friday.

The point was underscored by the Wolves' senior right hander Chuck Gibson, who startled pennant contender Livermore, 2-1 on a four-hitter.

Gibson, a junior varsity graduate, made his first start of the year for San Ramon Friday. With the Wolves now facing a solid week off, he may never pitch again.

"We've got four good starters and I don't think any other team in the league can boast that," Steen said. "Most just rely on a stopper and then one other guy. It's just a shame that the schedule is made up this way. If we had more games, we could use all these guys, and the kids would have more fun."

Gibson, who appeared briefly in the exhibition season, is considered the bottom man in the San Ramon rotation. "He's our sixth man," somebody from the Wolf dugout joked Friday. But he looked like a 20-game winner to Livermore, which suffered a jolt to its EBAL championship hopes with the narrow defeat.

"He just had to have the chance," catcher Paul Miller said of Gibson.

"He deserved it," Steen said. "He's been sitting on the bench all year, and anybody who sits that long deserves the chance to play.

"This is the best thing that could have happened to him. He didn't walk a soul, and hardly got into trouble at all. He's a strong kid," Steen said, "and we knew that if he didn't walk anybody, he had to go all the way."

Gibson allowed a first inning run to the Cowboys on Wayne Perry's third base line-hugging double and a subsequent sacrifice fly by Rich Palmer.

From there he was outstanding, striking out six, and allowing just three other batters to reach base.

Livermore had one chance to score again in the third inning, as Perry and Ken Watts singled. Both were cut down at second base by Miller, however, attempting to steal. Watts took off on the first pitch after his leadoff single. Miller out-smarted Livermore by calling a pitchout then gunning down the helpless baserunner.

This year the junior catcher has eliminated 20 base runners on steal attempts in 22 opportunities. He has also picked nine runners off base.

"It seems like most teams give it away when they want to steal this year," Miller said modestly, ignoring his cannon arm. "They always run on the first or second pitch."

San Ramon beat the Cowboys with single runs in the second and fourth inning.

Jeff Cody's towering home run over the left field fence knotted the score at one. In the fourth inning, Cody walked, advanced to third on Ed Flanagan's hit-and-run single, and scored the winning run on Greg Bishop's infield out. Surprisingly, Livermore failed to draw in its infield on the play, conceding the run on a ground ball.

The rest of the game was cleanly played, with neither side committing an error.

Keith Richardson was the losing pitcher, though he too pitched well with a four-hitter. Richardson struck out two and walked three.

Mustangs shaky, so Dons move right in Any re-broadcast, reproduction or other use of this game without the express written consent of the Monte Vista Mustangs would be an act of cruelty and a public embarrassment.

The original show played poorly in Danville Friday afternoon, leaving bewildered partisans (and probably more than a few ill-wishers) to wonder whether these Mustangs were more slapstick than serious, more horseplay than hustle.

Amador's Mark Larson, a stringy lefthander with an adequate curveball and the good sense to keep an already-teetering opponent off balance, allowed Monte Vista five hits, winning 7-3 and dropping the Mustangs into a tie for the EBAL's top spot.

None of MV's runs were earned.

Larson struck out seven, walked six and hit a man, none of which explains his ability to convince the Mustangs that pitches in the dirt and/or seven feet off the ground were worthy of their attention. They couldn't figure him out.

Jeff Washburn opened the game with a single off MV starter Don Blessen, went to second on Steve Vaughn's sacrifice, and scored on Brett Boldrini's single up the middle.

The Mustangs countered by loading the bases with none out, but Mark Silva wandered ten feet too far down the third base line and was doubled up easily when Chris Dudley lined to Vaughn near the bag. Kevin Jones bounced back to Larson, and the Dons sat down.

They came up with three runs in the top of the second, chasing Blessen in the process.

After Larson popped out, Randy Talarico singled. Mike Garrigan followed with a sacrifice bunt attempt, which Blessen fielded late and threw down the right field line, moving Talarico to third.

Jeff Washburn dropped a squeeze bunt in front of the plate, which Blessen picked up and lobbed gently to catcher Chris Hadsell, too late to nail Talarico.

That brought Monte Vista coach George Cockerton off the bench, followed closely by Blessen's replacement, Darrell Jardine.

Jardine's first offering went to the screen, moving the runners to second and third.

With the infield in, Vaughn singled between third and short, scoring Garrigan and moving Washburn to third. Jardine soon wild pitched him home, then got Mike Johnson and Boldrini as Vaughn died at third.

Cockerton moved Greg Goodman from third base to the mound and gave the Mustangs five decent innings of relief, considering the late notice. Goodman hit three batters with the hardball and saw several forkballs sail out of control, but he did manage to strike out five and avoid bombardment.

Amador scored a run in the third. Ed Bevilacqua was hit by a pitch, moved to second on a wild pitch, and took third when Goodman fielded brother Mark's sacrifice attempt and threw too late trying to erase the lead runner. Goodman went wild again, and Bevilacqua came home.

Monte Vista made it 5-1 in the bottom of the third. Second baseman Mark Silva drew a walk, went to second on an infield out, then took advantage of two straight passed balls by Don catcher Mark Bevilacqua.

Boldrini singled home Washburn in the top of the fourth for Amador's sixth run. and the Dons got their final tally in the seventh when Talarico drove in Ed Bevilacqua with only the sixth hit for the visitors.

The Mustangs stole home twice in the bottom of the seventh, an inning of false hopes and sleepy baserunning.

Steve Jones and Goodman opened with a pair of walks. Jones stole third, but Goodman waited a pitch and was fortunate to make second when a sure pickoff turned into an abortive rundown. Goodman began moving toward second with less than avid enthusiasm. Larson threw to first, and Goodman took off for Garrigan's relay was in plenty of time, but Talarico and the ball were separated by Goodman's hard slide. Meanwhile, Jones stole the plate.

Goodman did the same while Kevin Johnson, pinch-running for Tom Kelly after Kelly's two-out single, volunteered himself for the final out of the game. A la Goodman a few minutes earlier, Johnson wandered off first, but even before Larson had stepped on the pitching rubber. Larson, half-amazed at the sight, chased Johnson toward second, then lobbed to Talarico for the easy putout. Goodman crossed the plate before the final out was registered.

An Editorial

The muddy alphabet soup we must digest

The other day a faithful reader of this newspaper put down that day's edition, dialed the editor, and asked — "Just what in the hell are you talking about?" Fortunately for our own journalistic pride, she was talking of "all you newspaper people, and all the politicians too." Her lament was directed toward "the layer upon layer of agencies and issues and 'solutions' which you keep throwing at us, with no evidence whatsoever that things are getting any better, or even any clearer."

She makes an excellent point. Our own review of this and other valley publications — and we are inundated on that score, too — only supports the lady's claim to total confusion. The recitation of sewer and water and "environmental" problems is a litany of tedium. The prospects are for even more of the same. The situation grows confusingly critical.

Take just last week, for instance. COVA met with BART to talk about transportation systems that may or may not exist by 1980, financed by money no one has, over routes that don't yet exist, to serve a new populace that others are determined must never be allowed to enter.

Meanwhile Pleasanton is still in court with VCSD; the VCSD in turn is suing Volk-McLain; the builders are at legal odds with both local agencies; it's the Sierra Club versus CAL-TRANS (but on Tuesday's it's versus Apperson Ridge); and EPA taking on all mankind.

Trying to report that alphabetic mess day - to - day is rough. Trying to understand it must be even worse. It is in this enlightened mood that three valley business groups next Wednesday approach a high noon confrontation with something called "LAFCO," for reasons of high intent, but limited promise.

The Local Agency Formation Commission of Alameda County is very much in the business these days of imposing" "spheres of influence." Unlike the Las Positas -vs- Livermore hassie which LAFCO saw as "separate but equal," the determination for the west end of the valley is "all together as one big happy municipal family." It would be big, and it might even be municipal; but the chances of Dublin and Pleasanton getting together for any happy relationship are not very bright, at least not right now.

On paper the concept of "One Amador Valley City" looks good. The two communities have more in common than many care to admit . . . one high school system, an elementary district that spreads across half of one and all of the other; the utility system that provides "community services" for Dublin has its major operating facility located within Pleasanton's limits; and they share another half - dozen taxing and governmental jurisdictions.

But even with all that, Dublin and Pleasanton have a long way to go before they could attempt — let alone make work — a merger into one effective municipal system. They must first of all understand each other . . . develop common goals . . . and develop also an intelligent understanding of the complex regionalized world around us.

What is desperately needed right now is less government; less confusion at the public level and less costly confrontation between competing layers of high bureaucracy. If those goals can be accomplished in part by creating "one city for the Amador Valley," then it is a challenge worthy of our best effort. But the people — and their leaders — must understand the rules of the contest we are already in, before they can be asked to take on any new battles.

Our fickle electorate

An interesting view of the American citizen's approach to his "rights and responsibilities" as a voting member of that Republic is seen in the pattern of voter registrations over the years. It is not a very encouraging sign, at least not from the home - town vantage point.

In November of 1972 — the year and the month in which we were inspired to choose between Richard Nixon and George McGovern for the nation's highest office, there was a great outpouring of valley interest in that contest, as seen from the official "Report of Registration" for the State of California. Livermore showed 22.237 registered voters for that election; Pleasanton recorded a healthy 13,800 qualified electors.

Two years later, as we approached the election of a new governor and sundry other state and regional officers, the citizenry appeared to have sustained most, but not all, of that electoral interest — the September, 1974 registration totals credited Livermore with 21,127, Pleasanton with 13,186.

But that interest did not survive the "hot" gubernatorial campaign, and something less than 60 percent of us responded to that ballot. And because of that failure to preserve our franchise, along with a declining national interest in things governmental (or so we are told), the registration totals in January, 1975 showed a shocking decline.

The valley followed that apathetic pattern, Livermore slumping to a woeful 13,964; Pleasanton claimed just 9,144 qualified voters. If we follow the trend of the past, thousands will renew their right to vote just before the registration deadline of the next "exciting ballot." That same pattern also promises to attract those with particular interest in that election issue, or candidate, leaving thousands more unable or unwilling to even qualify themselves for that municipal, school board or county ballot.

Using the Livermore and Pleasanton official registration figures as a guide (no comparable totals are available for the unincorporated areas of Dublin, San Ramon or Sunol), it is apparent that of the 65,000 adults (those over 18) residing in the valley from San Ramon to Sunol, Pleasanton to Livermore, something less than 35,000 are today qualified to vote — on any ballot question, local, state or federal.

In order to re - instate their voting franchise, 30,000 adults just within this one "valley community" are going to have to be challenged by some new political figure — a presidential aspirant who, by November of 1976, will convince the people that their republic is worth voting for.

Final payment on the commitment

Round the town

Today is Sunday, May 4, the 124th day of the year. You still have 241 to go, '75 old baby, so hang in there.

It was on this very day, in 1814, that Napoleon Bonaparte dropped in on the island of Elba for an enforced vacation. If you wait until May 5, you will also learn that it was precisely 154 years ago when Napoleon found himself making another island famous. That would be St. Helena, where N.B. breathed his last.

Go clear back to this week in 1616 and you meet one Peter Minuit, an enterprising gent from the Netherlands, who came to the island of Manhattan. Bought the whole blessed place from the Indians for trinkets "to the value of $24, gold." Given the present state of Manhattan, it is now clear that the Indians may have gotten the best of that exchange, after all.

Conclusion — the first week in May is not a good time for islands.

It is a better time for those who seek their fortune inland, away from this troubled Bay, near Redding, perhaps. A soft - spoken, retired airline pilot who commutes between here and there, finds things much more attractive at that inland city. At least for investors.

"Eight years ago I started buying quarter sections near Redding for about $600 per acre. Had to wait a long time, but right now we're selling 20 - acre pieces for $2500 an acre. And plenty of buyers." Some are investors who sell again, in five - acre lots, for goodness - knows what price.

"Redding is really growing . . . lots of new commerce and industry, motels and the like." He estimates the "greater Redding" population at 100,000. "They figure to have 400,000 in another 20 years."

So now you know where the growth goes, when it can't go any farther around the fringes of San Francisco Bay. Wish now I had bought into that lava bed venture, close by Tulelake, when I was offered the chance, in my batchelor days. Another great opportunity lost.

***

The first of May was not all bad news. There was, for instance, that very exciting piece sent to us by the Department of Motor Vehicles. "NOTICE OF DRIVERS LICENSE EXTENSION," it said in bold print, right below my very own name, It looked like a citation. An invitation for an extended stay in the state hotel at Folsum.

But no. "You have been selected at random . . . " A winner! Just me among the millions. Standing apart from the multitude, and that sort of thing.

The extension is for one year. To my driver's license. I don't have to line up next birthday with the rest of you Leo's. ". . . among those drivers with a clear record. . ." Because I have been a good boy, Jerry Brown extended my driver's license for a full year. And I didn't even have to ask. Or squint in front of that distant panel of letters. Or stand before that unflattering camera. I am spared, for a full year.

Holding a valid driver's license is the basis of our free enterprise system. I can now cash my personal check, even at the Cheese Factory, where they still ask — "Who he??" No longer, I have the extension.

"Do you have any proper identification?", the desk clerk at the hotel asks with proper indifference. I whip out my wallet, produce the Certificate of Extension. The clerk is impressed, even abashed. He mumbles something like — "I had no way of knowing, sir. Please accept the room free of charge as a token of our respect."

They are wheeling me into emergency. A great life is ebbing away. "Stop!" the voice from the admission's desk orders. "See if he has the proper credit before you place that battered body on one of our clean beds." They fumble through my pockets. Time is precious. Somehow I find the strength to whisper . . . "Certificate of Extension." The admission papers are quickly completed, I am rushed to surgery, and then a private room, with sheets. The Department of Motor Vehicles has saved a great journalist, to write again.

I am breezing down Stanley Boulevard. Breathing the good, clean oxidants. Oblivious to the world, and to the speed limit. "I clocked you doing 62, and weaving," the uniformed officer says with indifferent authority. "Let me see you driver's license, you drunk."

For one terrible moment my blood boils, my need to lash out at this crude cop is urgent. But then I remember . . . I don't have a driver's license. I have a Certificate of Extension!

"What the hell's this thing?", the authoritative dumb dumb demands. "I ask for a driver's license and you give me a Girl Scout membership card." I point to the writing thereon, including the signature of one Robert C. Cozens, Director of Motor Vehicles. And I wait for his mumbled apology. Instead, he just sneers a little.

"Sixty two miles per hour is 62 mph no matter who gives you a pretty piece of paper, mister. I'll see you in court."

And I'll see you on my island. When next you come to visit. Far from this madding crowd, and phony Certifi*cates of Extension. Elba* would be nice, I conclude. Or, if things don't soon improve, even St. Helena. A quiet place where a fallen emperor might live out his years, and dream of past triumphs, all too soon forgotten.

The week in retrospect

A trustee is named

We heartily concur with the Amador Valley Joint High School District board's choice of Wayne Barnes to complete the ranks of trustees.

Barnes is known throughout the Dublin community for his long-standing participation in organizations that benefit adult and student alike.

From brief conversations with the P.G. and E. systems analyst, he seems quite capable of delving into the various and complex problems that come before a school board . . . and doing it with the mutual rapport of fellow board members. In short, he seems to have the capacity to be his own man when that is called for or be an integral part of a team effort.

His qualifications, as stated initially in The Times earlier this week, include a 9½ year residency in Dublin, parent of five school-age children, a college graduate in Business Administration, associate charter member of the Dublin Jaycees, founder and cubmaster of Pack 908, former coach and officer of Dublin Little League, founder and head coach of Dublin Pop Warner Football, current officer with the Dublin High Boosters Club and "Husband of the Year" award recipient.

Barnes and his wife, Valerie, and five children, reside on Ione Court.

In making the announcement last Tuesday, board president Jack Delaney said that trustees went for the most qualified person. Left unsaid but fairly apparent is the fact that trustees believe Barnes will be responsive to the problems of the ENTIRE district. This was one of the key factors in selecting a replacement for Bert Hersevoort.

The Times had made it clear from the outset of the search that a Dublin resident should be the choice of the board. And trustees had indicated they would look for the person most responsive to problems of the ENTIRE district, without regard to residence.

Obviously, the choice is a good one for all concerned.

Still to be resolved, though, is the question of the board's manner of selection.

Letters to the Editor

Teacher's work day

Editor, The Times:

I was offended by the article on your front page that said "teachers now must be in school about six to seven hours, although many linger later and arrive earlier than required."

The use of the word "linger" clearly portrays the contemptuous attitude toward teachers displayed by an apparently increasing number of citizens and school board members. These people, undoubtedly, will cheer the issued - in - ignorance counterproposal for 190 eight-hour teacher work days. And, among them will be the parents who just didn't show up for the 7 p.m. conference arranged at their convenience; the shopkeeper who bemoans the ever-decreasing age of non-supervised pilferers; the retired people dismayed by the wanton vandalism of their yard . . . all good citizens . . . see noconnectionbetween their own mis-use of teachers and the attitude of the kids toward all adults.

What are the real values of a town that offers higher starting salaries to the people who maintain their parks than to the people who teach their children?

The impact of a school teacher on the lives of his pupils and their families can not be evaluated in terms of hours, days, or test scores. Do you respect your pastor in proportion to the number of hours he spends at the altar? What weight do you allocate to home calls? Counseling on the phone? . . .

As a professional teacher I publicly state that I am insulted by a negotiation counter-proposal that implies that I earn my salary only when I am at my desk in the classroom and by a press that assesses my after-class activities as "lingering" in the school building. Moreover, I challenge the press and the school board to find out what is actually involved in being a classroom teacher. . . Understanding will change your own attitude from disdain to awe.

Sound and Fury

Walt Hecox

The silver and black beer stein will soon repose in all its shining magnificence on the bookshelves beside our fireplace, joining, among other things, my silver 19th hole trophy, a combination of Japanese aluminum and South Pacific mahogany which was presented to me by one General Ames one steamy night on Guadalcanal, a 37 millimeter shell casing, an anchor, a life sized duck decoy, two complete encyclopedias and Sir Winston Churchill's trilogy.

Pretty impressive company, you must admit, and of course there is more. Like Ernest Hemingway's Old Man and the Sea and A Moveable Feast, a Thorne Smith trilogy and a wide variety of how to do it books.

Missing, of course, is The Perfumed World, that notable piece of liturature composed by this old man which was promptly labeled a breast seller (cq) by someone near and dear to the author when she saw the demure, but somewhat revealing, cover illustration.

I will never know how my last copy of that tidy little novel managed to come up missing and failed to take its proper place beside Hemingway, Churchill and Thorne Smith, to say nothing of the World Book and that wooden decoy.

Of course the stein, like the Perfumed World, deserves to mingle with the best. I believe that magnificent piece of crockery will hold a full quart of beer without spilling a drop.

Emblazoned on one shining black side is the silver emblem of the Oakland Raiders, a football team of some reknown in these parts, and on the other the words, also in silver, "Commitment to Excellence" and "Oakland Raiders — 1975."

Those words, Commitment to Excellence, might sound a little stuffy to a man sitting on the sidelines who did not know the Raiders or their coach, Mr. John Madden, the King Sized Squire of Pleasanton.

There has never been, and forgive me if I have said this before one way or another, a man more committed to excellence than John, unless it is his immediate superior in the Raider organization, one Al Davis, the reigning genius of Oakport Street.

We gathered Wednesday evening, the gentlemen of the press and some of the Raiders' personal friends, to watch the showing of a film by the same name motto on the stein as the and to mingle with each other over wheat squeezings, juniper juice and dinner.

Say what you will of the Raiders, they have class, my friends.

Madden sat at dinner near the lecturn (with the Raiders I somehow always think of it as the lecturn rather than a podium) and was his usual highly amusing self.

John is not a man to say anything except what he means and exactly the way he wants it said. No if, ands or buts and no deleted expletives.

There was a time when he was addressing the press in that tiny room beneath the coliseum following a game when someone reminded him he was being taped by a radio station.

Madden snorted, sipped his soft drink and then said, laughing, "Oh, (expletive deleted) I've (expletive deleted) that one up anyway!"

As is his custom, he introduced his staff to the press Wednesday, their wives and then forgot to include the gracious and patient Virginia, a fifth grade Pleasanton school teacher who is married to the big man.

Having taken a considerable ribbing for a similar omission some years ago, Madden remembered Virginia at the last minute and patched the oversight with his customary, and sometimes surprising aplomb.

We ate roast beef and I cheated on the carbograms for the first time this week and ate all of Skeeter's french fried potatoes and drank good burgundy wine.

A gentleman from across the muddy water sat down beside me and said, "Walt, I've just got to get out of sports. I've had it right up to here."

He pointed at his throat and I got the message. I wondered what those laddies who had to get out of sports would do if they had followed the portion of the writing and reporting business which was mine for at least a decade and a half.

During the summer of 1944 one Fred Walker, then city editor of the old Call Bulletin, sent me down to the Hall of Justice in San Francisco to cover the night beat.

The night beat is blood, my friends, and my path was stained cardinal red for the next 15 years.

I wrote murder stories and detective stories until I dreamed at least once a week I was a convicted killer sentenced to death or on the run from the police.

Give me my choice between sports and hard news and I will take the make believe world on the gridiron or hardwood court every time. Some day my San Francisco friend will learn.

He picked up a bottle of wine and filled his glass again and again and again. Then he said, with some degree of dramatic emphasis, "As you no doubt see, Walt, I drink a lot."

A nice guy and one of whom I am deeply fond. But I know that anyone who makes a dramatic production of his imbibing, will no doubt drink too much. How else can he maintain his image.

We ate dessert, a rare treat for me, and then trooped down to the auditorium in Oakland's Kaiser building and watched the 1974 Film Highlights. Commitment to excellence. The Raiders made touchdown after touchdown while the enemy made a few. John Madden and that lightning fast end, one Cliff Branch, starred. Until right at the end of the show when Al LoCasale upstaged them both with one burst of wild enthusiasm.

Then back to San Ramon where the silver and black stein went on the mantle. Beside the wooden duck. The empty shell casing. And a trilogy by that eminent author from the thirties, Mr. Thorne Smith.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You'll have a few minor frustrations to contend with today. They won't amount to a hill of beans if you treat them philosophically.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) A situation will arise where it may cost you a little cash up front before you see a return. Later, the profit should be there.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Be sure your goals are in harmony with your friends. If not, make some adjustments so no one feels left out.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You have a tendency today to anticipate the outcome of events negatively. Fortunately, you'll be wrong on the important issues.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You'd be wise not to talk too much at this time to a friend who is not involved in a venture you share with someone else.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) In any bargaining you do today, let the other party do most of the selling. You'll get better terms.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Don't base major decisions today upon partial or hearsay information. Root out all the facts firsthand.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If you have any dealings of importance, you'll fare better toward late afternoon than in the early part of the day.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Lady Luck is trying to get to you either through a member of your family or a family contact. Don't shut her out.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Erase from your mind petty little worries relating to your work — they can be attended to later in the week. Relax. Let go.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) A chance remark by a friend will trigger your imagination. A profitable idea will result. Do something with it.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Though you will get off on the wrong foot today, things will work out when the final results are tallied.

Your Birthday

May 4, 1975

Friends will play an important role in your affairs this year. Two of them in particular, will be very active pulling strings from behind the scenes to help make your lot easier.

Oswald: "The 'R' for Review the bidding isn't important in this hand, but the 'A' for Analyze the lead; the 'C' for Count winners and losers and the 'H' for How can I make this hand really are important."

Jim: "South counts three winners in the majors and needs six in the minors to make three notrump. He has to play both minor suits and sees little chance to make his contract if the club finesse is going to lose."

Oswald: "Therefore, he should assume that the club finesse will work. This gives him the winning line of play."

Jim: "He starts by leading the eight of diamonds and overtaking with dummy's ten. East stays off. Next South must lead a club and take the finesse. It works."

Oswald: "Now South leads a second diamond, overtaking in dummy while East can do no better than to hold up again. A second club finesse followed by ace and a small club lets East take his king. East clears the spades now, but it is too late. South scores a fourth club trick which gives him the six minor suit tricks he needs."

Alameda chief paid for talent

Basically, says County Administrator Loren Enoch, his job is "serving at the pleasure of the board".

That is a fairly nebulous job description, but Enoch's responsibilities are varied and complex enough to command the highest salary in the Alameda County bureaucracy and his duties make him one of the most important men in the county hierarchy.

"Serving at the pleasure of the board" earns Enoch some $45,000 a year and involves him in almost every nook and cranny of county functions.

And Enoch, a 56 year old Oakland resident, has to be familiar enough with each nook to be able to respond to pointed questions from the supervisors at the weekly meetings in Oakland.

For example, Enoch's staff will prepare a report, say, on mental health care at Santa Rita (or treatment of animals in Hayward or the success of the Williamson Act in other counties) and Enoch will present it to the board. Any questions the board may have at the meeting are basically Enoch's responsiblity — and the board traditionally has a lot of questions.

But although that part of Enoch's job requires a large dose of mental agility, perhaps the most influential part of his job deals with the budget.

Enoch's office prepares the budget each year and presents it to the board — with their comments. So, each of the 140 or so agencies in the county will have their budget requests analysed not only by the supervisors, but by the County Administrator's office.

And not only does Enoch's office determine, to some degree, how much money each agency is budgeted for, but also his staff watches over each agency during the year to make sure that the budget is being followed.

Another key function of the County Administrator is to coordinate and oversee revenue sharing programs throughout the county and make sure all state and federal guidelines are followed.

But preparing the agenda, making up the budget and supervising revenue sharing programs are not the reasons Enoch is at the top of the pay scale in the county. His responsiblities are as wide-ranging as he wants them to be, and Enoch likes it that way.

Admitting that he has "no direct authority," Enoch is still pleased that "the board has the willingness to allow an administrator to act."

One of his more visible actions is an Affirmative Action hiring program that is now countywide. "When I walked in this office, there wasn't a black face in it" says Enoch and it is plain to any visitor that that situation no longer applies.

Organizationally, Enoch took all the support services in the county (those that provide services to county agencies) and put them under the umbrella of the General Services Administration. Previously, communications was handled by one department, supply of paper by another and so on.

Now, all are under one roof and many duplications of services have been eliminated at great savings to the taxpayer.One of those savings resulted when all staff cars were put in one pool. It was quickly evident that the county had too many automobiles for its need and replacements have been cut in half, again at a savings to the taxpayer.

Enoch is just entering his fourth year as Alameda County Administrator. Previously, he held a similar position in Ventura County for ten years, but decided it was time to move on.

When cities begin to rely on county money and county services, Enoch warns simply "their choices become fewer. And that's true of the county in relation to the state" he adds.

Although Enoch may only "serve at the pleasure of the board," in his words, the almost unknown County Administrator ends up doing much more than just following the board's suggestions, and earns every penny of his high salary.

COME BACK, HENRY. CAN'T WE BE FRIENDS AGAIN?

The Israeli government has received the strong impression that it's being cold-shouldered by the United States. What to do? What to do?

Israel: a new peace plan?

By NEA-London Economist News Service

JERUSALEM — (LENS) — Come back, Henry. That sums up what Yitzhak Rabin and Israel's cabinet are hoping for now: a demonstration both that Middle East peacekeeping is back on the road and that Washington and Jerusalem are friends again. Israel's leaders want this whether or not the Geneva conference is reconvened.

They would not care to plunge into the fray at Geneva at odds with their only ally and without some tangible previous evidence that progress towards a settlement is still possible.

Everybody in Israel is worried about the cold shoulder presented by the American government since Kissinger's effort to mediate between Egypt and Israel broke down last month and the Administration announced a "re-examination" of its Middle East policies.

This week Yigal Allon, the Israeli foreign minister, beat a path to the United States, making a three-day speaking tour the occasion for an interview with Kissinger this week. This trip has aroused considerable criticism in Israel, on the ground that it may simply invite more American pressure.

Many of Allon's cabinet colleagues objected to it; the Likud opposition called the Knesset into a mid-recess debate about it; and a group of young women demonstrated at the airport with placards accusing Allon of "going to Canossa." His statement that he was not carrying new proposals for a partial settlement with Egypt was not believed, and no doubt did nothing to appease Kissinger.

These difficulties with America should not be inflated beyond their true scale. The existing American aid commitments to Israel are being implemented; the informal alliance has not been repudiated, and nobody is suggesting it should be; if there is another war the United States is said to be preparing to airlift military supplies to Israel even if its planes cannot stop in Europe on the way over.

All the same, the American government has announced that talks about new military supplies will have to wait. Unconfirmed reports say that approval of the delivery of Lance ground-to-ground missiles to Israel is being delayed, and that negotiations on the delivery of other weapons — including anti-missile equipment — have been halted indefinitely.

Israel's request for a total of $2.5 billion of all kinds of aid for the American budget year starting in July has been left hanging in the air.

This sort of American foot-dragging has often happened before, and Israel is used to it. But Kissinger is plainly angry about the failure of his mission. He has been complaining that Israel's negotiating team — Rabin, Allon and the defense minister Shimon Peres — was weak and short-sighted.

Israel has been bringing counter-pressure to bear by activating the Jewish lobby and other friends of Israel in America. A stream of Americans landing in Israel, including Senators Javits and McGovern, have passed Israelis heading for the United States to drum up support there: among them, Moshe Dayan, Abba Eban and Menahem Begin.

A lot of Israelis are asking why matters were allowed to reach this pass, even though many of the same people applaud Rabin for standing up to American pressure. The details of Israel's proposals in the failed negotiations with Egypt have now emerged in bits and pieces.

It seems that Israel offered to pull back fairly deep into Sinai north of the Mitla and Giddi passes (leaving a small enclave in which there would be an Israeli early-warning electronic system, while Egypt would maintain a similar system behind Israeli lines). Farther south, it said it would go back as far as the middle of the Giddi and Mitla passes themselves, and evacuate the Abu Rudeis oilfields.

It was willing to renounce the principle of demilitarization of the evacuated area in favor of a reduced Egyptian military presence. Both countries would reduce their armies, Egypt by cutting its down from 650,000-700,000 men to 400,000 and Israel by shortening its compulsory military service from three to two and a half years.

Before the negotiations ground to a halt, Israel gave up its demand for an Egyptian declaration of non-belligerence, but asked for an agreement valid for four years in which Egypt would undertake not to join in a war started by a Syrian attack and would reduce its part in the Arab economic war against Israel.

Israel's leaders have indicated that these proposals still stand. They will pull their troops back even farther if Egypt consents to waive the use of force for a period of years and the agreement contains some political commitments by Egypt that point towards peace.

This may be what Allon will tell Kissinger, who says he would be willing to reopen his mission if both sides asked him back. What he appears to want from Israel is not more territorial concessions but that Israel should make no demands of Egypt, and should in particular forget about an agreement with those "political" elements in it. Egyptian President Anwar Sadat utterly opposes these, however much territory in Sinai is offered in return. But Israelis are not convinced that Sadat's intentions are peaceful.

They note his message to Lebanon this week, urging the embattled Christian Phalangists and Palestinians to stop fighting with each other and save their blood for the war against Israel. They also note the humiliating process to which Israel was subjected to retrieve the bodies of 39 of its men who fell in the 1973 war; at different stages of the business Israel had to release 112 men convicted of terrorism, spying and other security offences. And Egypt is still withholding 18 bodies.

On Monday Israel unveiled its first home-made fighter-bomber — the Kefir, "Lion Cub", a combination of a body copying the French Mirage and the engine of the American Phantom. The possibility of another war this summer is by no means ruled out in Israel.

Sharpest decline in the U.S.

Poverty sets back the New South

RALEIGH — (LENS) — Forty years after Franklin Roosevelt offended southern pride by calling the South the country's number one economic problem, it is in distress again. The present recession is undermining some of the progress made in the years between.

During the 1960s, indeed, the South's economy grew more rapidly than that of any other region and for two decades it suffered no real recession.

The South's integration into the national economy began with World War II, when many big military camps were installed in the southern states. Thereafter, year by year, industrialization, taking advantage of the labor released from an increasingly mechanized and diversified agriculture, provided new kinds of employment and higher levels of income.

Not only white families but also many black ones, lived well; the gap between southern incomes and those in the rest of the country narrowed. Between 1959 and 1968 there were major reductions in the numbers of families living in poverty, except among families dependent on the earnings of black women.

But beginning in December, 1973, unemployment in most of the 11 southern states, from Virginia to Texas, climbed steeply. No southern state equalled Michigan's fall into double-digit distress, with a rate of unemployment that rose from 5.4 to 11.1 per cent of its labor force, but North Carolina's rise from 3.2 to 8.1 per cent was sharper.

By January, 1975, there were 263,000 North Carolinians without work, compared with only 103,000 a year earlier.

The impact of layoffs has been most severe in goods-producing occupations. The collapsing construction boom has idled workers from lumber camps to furniture factories (furniture sales reflect the building of new houses).

Non-durable goods, which escaped in previous recessions, have been hit hard. Unsold stocks of textiles and clothing — the traditional products of the mill-towns of the southern Piedmont — have discouraged the placing of new orders by businessmen. And textiles account for almost a quarter of the South's output of manufactures.

The relative immunity of service industries is likely to be brief; when chain saws and mill spindles are silent, so are the motors of big interstate lorries and even the coffee machines of quick-lunch places along southern Main Streets.

What makes the South vulnerable to recession is the poverty which persists even in boom times. A study issued by the Southern Council and based on the 1970 census points out that only a quarter of the American population lives in the South, but this includes 38 per cent of the country's poor, 10 million of the 27 million families and individuals whose income fall below nationally-determined poverty levels.

In 1969 four per cent of all white families in the Southeast and 17 per cent of all the black families existed on incomes that were less than half the poverty level. A drop in economic activity not only pushes these people deeper into poverty, but also pushes back into poverty many of the near-poor whose earnings in recent years have lifted them out of it.

The kind of agricultural poverty that was prevalent during the New Deal persists in places such as Appalachia, along the lower Mississippi and along the Rio Grande, where there is a large Mexican-American population.

Elsewhere wages tend to be low because the South's economy is based on low-wage industries. Only 15 per cent of the non-agricultural wage force belongs to trade unions, compared with 28 per cent in the country as a whole.

Many of the jobs available to female heads of families — and contrary to general belief about a third of the white and two-thirds of the black women with small children are working, the blacks mostly in private households — do not pay enough to support a single person, let alone a family.

Yet in 1970 only about six per cent of southern families received public assistance. The federal government supplies the bulk of the money, but it is distributed under state definitions of poverty which in the South are lower than the federal poverty line; most southern states pay less than even their own standards of need require in theory.

"Linear tactics" evolved in the 18th century European army with the development of firearms. The line of battle consisted of two or three ranks lines of men standing shoulder to shoulder. Casualties in the line were replaced by reserve ranks. With fixed bayonets the attackers moved forward, keeping their alignment, relatively safe from enemy musketry up to 100 yards away. The World Almanac notes that this was the drill for British troops in combat but was ineffective against guerrilla or Indian tactics.
